The largest dementia-focused event in the UK returns to Bournemouth this autumn

The 3rd UK Dementia Congress offers an exciting mix of plenary sessions, parallel sessions, workshops and posters as well as breakfast and lunchtime special interest symposia. These are the main themes of the 2008 congress:

People with dementia and their carers

Representatives from the Alzheimer's Society Living with Dementia programme and the Scottish Dementia Working Group will open the main conference proceedings, and their involvement will be a strong thread through the whole event.

National Dementia Strategy

This year's congress will provide the first professional analysis of the National Dementia Strategy, with presentations from:

- Ivan Lewis MP, Minister for Care Services
Jenny Owen, Executive Director of Adults, Health and Community Wellbeing in Essex, co-leader of the National Dementia Strategy work programme
Professor Sube Banerjee, Professor of Mental Health and Ageing at the Institute of Psychiatry, King's College London, co-leader of the National Dementia Strategy work programme
Perspectives from Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland

Streams and themes include:

- Designing the best environment for dementia care
Debate: What are the benefits of obtaining a diagnosis of dementia?
End-of-life support and palliative care
Dementia Care Mapping - led by Bradford Dementia Group
Quality of life for people with dementia in care homes

Knowledge-based practice

All presentations will demonstrate how practice is linked to knowledge and evidence gained from research, experience, guidelines or expert consensus.

The Tom Kitwood Memorial Address will be given by Virginia Moore, Dementia Consultant, Brightwater Care Group, Western Australia.

The energy at the congress was inspiring - so many like-minded people gathering to learn from each other

As a relative newcomer I found the congress welcoming, informative and compassionate

The debate really challenged my thinking
